

ABSTRACT

A Schottky device comprises a substrate layer of a first conductivity type having a surface, a guard ring formed over the surface of the substrate layer and surrounding a barrier region of the substrate layer. The guard ring comprises a gate of a second conductivity type disposed over a dielectric layer. A metal can be formed over the barrier region to form a Schottky junction.